

King George VI - Centenary of the First Adhesive Postage Stamps.

A decision was made in 1938 to mark the centenary of the introduction of the First Adhesive Postage Stamps with a set of stamps 'to be 1½ times the size of definitives'. With the outbreak of war in September 1939, the project was abandoned, but fortunately revived in December 1939. This is a stamp issue that was, but nearly wasn't! The use of bi-colour stamps was explored, but rejected in favour of more traditional methods of stamp design and production. Of the forty-four designs submitted, the two which had a 'dual head' format were favoured. The unsuccessful design by Edmund Dulac is shown below to the left of the design by H L Palmer, and submitted by Harrison & Sons Ltd. Palmer's design was used as the basis for the issued stamps we are now so familiar with.

Designer - H L Palmer (c1906-????), an artist and engraver employed by Harrison & Sons Ltd.
